THE LATEST HEADLINES

UT STUDENTS WARN PEERS ABOUT PROFESSORS WITH SEXUAL MISCONDUCT VIOLATIONS

Students on Twitter alert their classmates of courses taught by professors with sexual misconduct allegations. Student trust in the university administration to deal with these issues has dwindled.

UT THEATRE FESTIVAL GOES ONLINE BECAUSE OF COVID

The UT Department of Theatre and Dance's annual Cohen New Works Festival had to be held completely remote this year. This was some of the students' first times filming anything by themselves before.

CENTRAL TEXAS RESCUERS WORK TO SAVE PIGS, FARM ANIMALS DURING WINTER STORM

February's storm Uri caused the managing partners of Central Texas Pig Rescue to go into survival mode to protect their pigs. Needing extra hay, thawing ice and pig politics all presented unprecedented issues. While pigs prefer cold to hot weather, temperature as cold as the storm presented can be dangerous for them.

VACCINATIONS OPEN POSSIBILITIES FOR CHILD CARE WORKERS AND FAMILIES

The pandemic not only brought a tough adjustment for families with children, but for childcare providers. Parents had to mix their work and home life, while students whose income was childcare had to look elsewhere for work.

HOUSTON NURSE CROWDFUNDS TO TAKE HOSPITAL TO COURT OVER VACCINE LAYOFFS

Baytown Houston Methodist hospital nurse Jennifer Bridges is taking her employer to court due to their forced vaccination mandate. Bridges and other employees say they will not feel safe until the vaccine is FDA approved. Hospital President and CEO Dr. Marc Boom suggests it is imperative and safe for his employees to take this COVID-19 vaccine.

AUSTINITES ENGAGING IN THE PROFITABLE FETISH OF FINANCIAL DOMINATION

Financial domination is a recently popularized type of BDSM — a set of erotic practices that include bondage and discipline, dominance and submission, sadism and masochism. In Austin, like other growing tech hubs, conditions appear ripe for a findom scene.
